

20 YEARS OF YORKSHIRE SUCCESS

Last week marked the 20th anniversary of the Classic & Sports Car Centre – formerly known as Grundy Mack – which specialises in offering high-quality classics from its premises in Malton, North Yorkshire. And current owner James Szkiler has been enjoying the limelight.

'Our 20th birthday coincided with some terrific local press coverage, as we've just sold a Rolls-Royce Silver Dawn that was once owned by George Formby. As soon as news of that got out, we were inundated with press enquires, and even had the local TV news crew filming here. It's been a great way to celebrate 20 years of success.'

Grundy Mack was originally founded in April 1991 by James' father and uncle, Nick and Paul Szkiler. And Nick is particularly proud of what's been achieved: 'We began trading at the height of the last recession, and we've been busy trading through another. Now James, once the little eight-year-old, wide-eyed with awe at some of our cars, is in the driving seat of the business himself – and in many ways is better at it than his Dad!'

Now known as the Classic & Sports Car Centre, the company enjoys a loyal following and usually has a fascinating array of different models available. Check out the website (www.classicandsportscar.ltd.uk) for the latest stock updates.

Last weekend marked the 20th anniversary of the North Yorkshire-based Classic & Sports Car Centre.